

Would you could come to Richmond with your case already made up, and the State Committee could at the one session pass upon the whole question and decide it. I do not see that in view of your right of appeal to the State Committee how you could be put at any disadvantage in pursuing the course indicated by me, for you could certainly take your own evidence and submit your own argument in support of the evidence in as convincing a manner as you could if the evidence was taken by a subcommittee of the State Committee. In addition to this you will, of course, save the expense incident to the conduct of the investigation by a subcommittee of the State Central Committee.

Please be good enough to carefully consider this and wire me your answer. I may add that I am as bitterly opposed to fusion as you could be. It may have been necessary in other days, but there is certainly no excuse for it now.

Yours very truly,
J. TAYLOR ELLYSON,
Chairman State Committee.

P. S.—I did not return to the city until yesterday, and in consequence did not have the opportunity sooner to read the papers you left at my office last week.

Straightened Decline.

To the above letter of Mr. Elyson the following telegraphic reply was received last night:

Norfolk, Va., July 26, 1911.

Mr. J. Taylor Elyson, Chairman State Central Committee, Richmond, Va.

After careful consideration of your letter of 25th we are firmly convinced that Norfolk county situation demands initial hearing by Central Committee.

It is evident that county committee is enmeshed in fusionism, and is absolutely disqualified to hear this case, as stated in our special plea, and this disqualification extends both to decision of case and important decisions on admissibility of evidence, etc. proper solution of which would be necessary to make up record for use before State committee. We feel that vital importance of fundamental question involved makes it the duty of State committee to meet and take all proper steps to settle this matter. We therefore ask that State committee be called forthwith, and that you advise us of time and place of meeting.

(Signed)
J. L. HEARD.

JAMES S. MARTIN,
BRADEN VANDEVENTER,
RUSSELL L. BRADFORD,
Counsel for C. W. Coleman and others.

Committee Is Called.

Without delay, after receipt of the telegram, Mr. Elyson mailed the following call to every member of the State Democratic Committee:

Virginia State Democratic Committee.

Richmond, Va., July 26, 1911.

My Dear Sirs:—I have called a meeting of the State Central Committee for the purpose of considering a petition from C. W. Coleman and others, contestants in the contest concerning the Democratic primary election held in Norfolk county June 25. It is the wish of the petitioners that the State committee shall assume original jurisdiction in this case.

The meeting is very important, and I am very anxious that every member shall be present. Please do not allow any ordinary engagement to prevent your being with us.

The meeting will be held at Murphy's Hotel on Monday evening, July 31, at 8 o'clock.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) J. TAYLOR ELLYSON,
Chairman.

J. N. Brenaman, Secretary.

REMAINS IN GEORGIA

Hoke Smith Will Not Be in Senate to Vote on Wool Bill.

Washington, July 26.—Surprise was expressed by Democratic Senators today when it was learned that Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, probably would not be in Washington in time to qualify and vote on the wool bill.

The desirability of having him here, in view of the prospect of a close vote, had been canvassed among the leaders Tuesday, and it was the belief on the part of some that Senator Martin, chairman of the Democratic caucus, was telegraphing him to be present.

Some Senators were so assured on this point that they stated to newspaper men that such a message had been sent. When it became known that the night's caucus that Mr. Martin had not felt authorized to act, Senator Reed introduced a resolution in the caucus declaring it the sense of the meeting that the Georgia Senator should be in the seat.

No action was taken, however.

DOROTHY DIX HERE

But Wendenburg Thinks Beulah Has Been Interviewed Enough.

Mr. Wendenburg yesterday expressed his opinion that Dorothy Dix had been interviewed enough by New York yesterday to write a few lines about the Beulah murder case.

She went down to the county jail to interview Beulah Binford, but Louis O. Wendenburg thought that Beulah had been interviewed quite enough.

Mr. Wendenburg, however, was the witness and paved out. Herbert Bayard Swept, of the New York World, who arrived yesterday, makes much about a score of purple newspaper representations on the scene since last week.

Since Thursday last the telegraph companies have been swamped with the rush of newspaper reports sent out from Richmond about the murder.

Rhodesmen Knights to Meet.

A CARD

Cardwell, Va., July 26, 1911.

To the Voters of the Sixteenth Senatorial District:

When I announced myself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator, I presumed, as did most every one in the district, that the city of Manchester would vote in the primary. It is now evident that the action of the Democratic committee will stand, whether right or wrong. This fact has influenced me to retire from the canvass, and I here tender my thanks to the many friends who have so cordially pledged me their support.

Respectfully,
P. A. L. SMITH.

Work of Army Sergeants is Proving Highly Beneficial—Health of Soldiers Perfect and Good Order is Remarkable.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Culpeper, Va., July 26.—Not a single man in the hospital is the report from the chief surgeon to-day. The fact is that the officers and men were never in better health or spirits, and notwithstanding the strenuous work outlined in the schedule, everybody appears to work with a willing spirit.

The work of the army sergeants is beginning to tell, for at drill this morning the Virginia boys showed that they are absorbing the instructions like a sponge does water. The schedule in the forenoon consisted of close company and battalion guard formations for four hours, immediately after which Major Parker, the regimental surgeon, lectured the entire regiment on "Camp Hygiene."

This evening the regiment was drilled in regimental drill, in close or der, and this was immediately followed by regimental parade and guard mount.

To-night the band gave a concert in front of General Vaughan's headquarters, to the delight of several hundred men and women of Culpeper.

The behavior of the men is the subject of most favorable comment by the citizens of Culpeper. Each night hundreds of the men visit the city, but not a single complaint has been made of bad conduct. The soldiers' bearing and appearance of the Second Battalion, under command of Major King, is most favorably commented upon by all observers. The three battalion commanders—Major Price, Major King and Major Craighill—are certainly as fine a trio of officers as can be found in any State.

It is the consensus of opinion of the citizens of Culpeper that it would be impossible to find anywhere else as handsome a lot of officers as are now at Camp Sale.

To-night General Vaughan and his entire staff attended a lawn party at the residence of M. A. Samuelson, on East Street.

Both officers and men are much pleased with the delightful climate of Culpeper. Two blankets at night are none too many for comfort. The days are delightfully cool, and the drills are not interfered with by excessive heat, as would be the case in other sections of the State.

Rev. J. Cleveland Hall, of Danville, chaplain of the First Regiment, will remain and serve a week with the Second Regiment, the chaplain of that regiment being unable to attend. Dr. Hall is a thorough soldier, a West Pointer, and is very popular in the service. Besides his duties, he attends to the mail for the regiment and has charge of the recreation and entertainment of the men.

The doctors, quartermasters and inspecting officers go over the camp every few hours, and it is kept scrupulously clean.

Colonel Jo Lane Stern, the Inspector-General, who has heretofore inspected all of the Virginia Volunteers at their home stations, is following the lead of the inspecting officers of some of the other States, and will inspect the brigade while in camp here. The headquarters of the First Regiment were inspected this morning. It is probable that the percentage present will be greater in this regiment than it was at home last year.

The Second Regiment, commanded by Colonel R. F. Leedy, of Lunenburg, will arrive next Sunday. It is known as the Valley Regiment, and extends from Winchester to Roanoke, with a company at Petersburg and one at Chase City, being so widely separated, the last company will not arrive until 9 o'clock at night.

A recreation tent, for the use of the enlisted men, is in charge of the chaplain, who urges the men to make use of it. It will be the camp post-office. The recreation tent is for the use and convenience of the enlisted men. The chaplain, who is in charge of the tent, urges all the commissioned officers to assist in every way possible in securing the interest of the men in the tent. At night a graphophone, with several hundred records, is in use. The recreation tent closes at tattoo.

The men of the First Battalion have settled down to hard work and are doing it like regulars. The commissary department has been perfected, so that the men have all the food desired.

William David Einstein, of the Fourth Virginia Regiment, has been made an honorary member of the First Battalion staff, and spends all his time with the battalion when not on duty in the commissary department.

Battalion officers called upon Major Price last night.

This morning exercises were in company and battalion drill, and in the work. This afternoon there was guard mounting by company and regimental review and parade.
